Dear Valued Customer:

Hood is voluntarily recalling a limited number of 96 oz containers of LACTAID Milk out of an abundance of caution because the product may contain trace amounts of almond, which is not listed on the label. People who have an allergy or severe sensitivity to almonds may run the risk of serious or life-threatening allergic reaction if they consume these products.

The product is safe to consume unless you have an almond allergy or sensitivity. No illnesses have been reported to date.

The recall applies only to a limited number of 96 oz. plastic containers of refrigerated LACTAID Milk with the manufacturer location code 51-4109 P2 and the Best By date listed in the chart below. The code and Best By date can be found in the center-top area of the container, as pictured in the image below. This recall applies to only those products that contain the code 51-4109 P2 and the Best By date specified in the chart below. No other products or sizes were impacted.
